Identification Cards

Identification cards for Soldiers, Family members and civilian employees can be obtained at the ID Card Section in Bldg. 213 on 20th Street. Soldiers may renew ID cards by reporting with supporting documents, such as promotion orders for E-5 and above or enlistment contracts. Civilian employees will be imbedded into the DEERS system by their civilian personnel office and contractors will be verified in the DEERS system through the contract verify system.

Wait times are longest for walk-in patrons, especially during the peak operating hours from 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.. To minimize wait times and increase convenience, schedule an appointment online at the following web address:

<https://es.cac.navy.mil/signup.pl>

Military family members must meet one of the following criteria to get an ID card:

- a. Be accompanied by their sponsor;
- b. Present a signed and notarized DD Form 1172;
- c. Present a DD Form 1172 verified by any ID card-issuing facility; or
- d. Present a general power of attorney.

Initial DEERS enrollment requires mandatory disclosure and verification of Social Security numbers of all beneficiaries of the uniformed services' health care system. Failure to disclose a SSN when enrolling in DEERS will result in loss of eligibility for medical care benefits in military treatment facilities.

Additionally, you must have certified copies of your marriage certificate for spouse; divorce decree if beneficiary was previously married; certified birth certificate for children/step-children; and a final adoption decree if the family member was adopted. A hospital confirmation of birth letter can be used in place of a birth certificate for a child under the age of one year. Everyone must be enrolled in the DEERS database before an ID card can be issued, or before medical treatment can be given.

Dependents 21 through 23 years remain eligible for an ID card if they are pursuing a degree full-time at an accredited college. Dependents must have a letter from the registrar's office on the school's letterhead stating that that the dependent is a full-time student, how many hours they are attending, and an anticipated graduation date, along with a point of contact.

Dependent ID cards can be renewed 90 days from the card's expiration date, with the exception of a dependent that is turning 65 years old. These ID cards can be renewed on the first of the month of the 65th birthday or any day thereafter. (Don't forget your Medicare Part A and B Card for sponsors and dependents turning 65).

The ID card facility is located at the DEERS office, 5815 20th Street Fort Belvoir, VA. 22060, (703) 805-5578. Hours of operation are 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday - Friday.

Fort Belvoir is accessible to the general public, under the restraints of access control. Residents of nearby communities are frequent visitors. Military bearing should always be a way of life for service members. The wearing of appropriate uniform is an important element of military life at Fort Belvoir.

Wearing the dress uniform is encouraged for attendance at social events. Civilian clothing may be worn off duty. Utility uniforms, and the Army Combat Uniform, are authorized for wear off post during duty hours (6 a.m. to 6 p.m.), for essential personal business that must be accomplished during duty hours when an establishment is not open on weekends or after the normal duty day. Examples include car repairs, Fort Belvoir housing is privatized under the Army's Residential Communities Initiative program. The program's goal is to improve the quality of life for military families by offering safe, affordable and attractive residential communities. The intent of the program is to provide military families the same quality of life in housing as the civilians they defend. Clark Pinnacle Family Communities is Belvoir's development partner. The Army and Clark Pinnacle came together on Dec. 1, 2003, to form a new entity that owns the housing - Fort Belvoir Residential Communities LLC. While FBRC is the owner, various members of Clark Pinnacle handle all of the day-to-day construction and operations activities.

Clark Pinnacle's years of national experience in developing, constructing and managing residential communities will ensure that the military families at Fort Belvoir receive modern homes and amenities as well as exceptional services. Clark Pinnacle is a partnership between developer Clark Realty Capital of Bethesda, Md., and property manager Pinnacle of Seattle, Wash. Clark Realty Capital and affiliates are providing the development, design, construction and asset management of the housing at Fort Belvoir. Pinnacle is providing property management services for Fort Belvoir housing.

Housing Registration

All military members with families are required by the Department of the Army to report to the Family Housing Office as part of in-processing. Military personnel must have their (permanent-change-of-station) orders before they can apply for on-post housing. Fort Belvoir homes are available to active duty military members from all service branches assigned to Fort Belvoir and the National Capital Region.

As new families arrive at Fort Belvoir, they will be directed to the Welcome Center where they will be greeted by a team of professionally trained housing consultants. A housing consultant will provide new families with a tour of Fort Belvoir and their potential new home. The tour includes a discussion of the history of the region and the post, and the activities and amenities residents will enjoy while living on post.

The Family Housing Welcome Center is located at 5994 12th Street. Normal operating hours are Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Web site is www.thevillagesatbelvoir.com. Phone: (703) 454-9700

New Neighborhoods

Clark Pinnacle opened the first new neighborhood in the summer of 2005. The new homes offer at least three bedrooms and two full baths, dishwashers, and nine-foot ceilings on the first floors. Each home also has a two-car garage. They are ENERGYSTAR™-certified, computer ready and include many upgraded features such as cabinets and flooring. The neighborhoods promote pedestrian-friendly living through walkways and alley-accessible garages.

Fort Belvoir Residential Communities also include several handicap-accessible, ranch-style homes, a new welcome center and some small retailers. There are also 25 townhomes located above the shops in the Fort Belvoir Town Center that are available to all rank structures.

Service Requests

Residents should place a call to the centralized maintenance phone number at (703) 454-9797 in order to request maintenance service. Maintenance requests can also be submitted via e-mail or on the Web site at www.village-satbelvoir.com. Service requests are placed into one of three categories: emergency, urgent or routine. A work order number is issued at the time of request for tracking. Residents should clearly state their name and address and the nature of the problem when submitting a service request to ensure a proper response. Residents should also provide permission to enter their home, or request a morning or afternoon appointment. Clark Pinnacle strives to respond to all routine maintenance requests within 72 hours.

In addition to 24-hour maintenance service, Clark Pinnacle provides yard maintenance for each home. Military families no longer have to cut grass, rake leaves or shovel snow from public sidewalks in front of their homes.

Phone: (703) 454-9797

Residential Communities Liaison Office

The Fort Belvoir Residential Communities Liaison Office (RCLO) was established Dec. 1, 2003. As the Army's liaison to FBRC partnership, the RCLO mission is to represent the family housing residents in dealing with the housing and installation staffs at Fort Belvoir. In general, and under normal conditions, residents will interact routinely with Clark Pinnacle's property management office for day-to-day items related to family housing. However, from time to time, the residents may have a need to contact the RCLO to share their opinions about family housing or discuss other issues that may arise. The RCLO may act as a mediator between the residents and the property management team on any unresolved issues or concerns. RCLO also handles the Housing Services Office (HSO) and the Set Aside Program. For off-post rental listings, please stop by their office located in the Welcome Center. Phone: (703) 805-3018 or 3019 .

Fort Belvoir's history is interwoven with the founding of Fairfax County, the settling of Virginia and the birth of our nation. The 8,656-acre tract along the Potomac River that is now Fort Belvoir was once part of a grant from a 17th century English king. Control of the land, known as the Northern Neck, was handed down through the Culpeper family to Thomas, the sixth Lord Fairfax, who, in 1734, persuaded his cousin, Col. William Fairfax, to come to Virginia and oversee the family's holdings.

In 1741, Col. Fairfax built his home on 2,000 acres of what is now much of the South Post peninsula. The mansion sat on a high bluff overlooking the Potomac. Col. Fairfax named the estate Belvoir, which is French for "beautiful to see".

Col. Fairfax's eldest son, George William, befriended young George Washington, who at age 16, came to live with his elder half-brother Lawrence at nearby Mount Vernon. The Fairfax family made Belvoir a center of culture and aristocratic elegance in the Virginia wilderness, and the family frequently entertained members of colonial Virginia society. Washington was a frequent guest at Belvoir.

Col. Fairfax died in 1757, and he and his second wife, Deborah, are buried on the estate grounds. George William Fairfax and his wife, Sally, returned to England in 1773, and the Fairfax family rented out the land and home until 1783, when it was mostly destroyed by fire. The mansion was further damaged by British cannons when U.S. military forces on the peninsula engaged British ships leaving Alexandria after the burning of Washington on their way to Fort McHenry in September 1814.

The Philip Otterback family purchased the Belvoir peninsula in the early 1840s and made it

The post was renamed Fort Humphreys in 1922 to indicate its permanent status. In recognition of its colonial-era significance, it was redesignated Fort Belvoir in 1935. From its establishment until 1989, Fort Belvoir was home to the Army's Engineer School, training more than 700,000 officers and one of the largest fisheries on the Potomac River. The District of Columbia purchased 1,500 acres from the Otterback family in 1910 for a proposed prison. Local citizens objected to the plan, and the land was transferred to the War Department in 1912. In 1915, engineer troops from Washington Barracks, now Fort McNair, established "Camp Belvoir" as a rifle range and training camp. The name was changed to Camp A.A. Humphreys Dec. 23, 1917, when the Corps of Engineers began construction of a major camp during an unusually bitter winter to train engineer replacements for World War I.

enlisted soldiers for service in all major wars and peacekeeping forces worldwide.

In 1988, the post was transferred from the U. S. Army Training and Doctrine Command to the Military District of Washington. In 1989, the last Engineer School class graduated from Belvoir and the school completed its move to its new home at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Today, Fort Belvoir serves as a strategic sustaining base as part of the National Capital Region District of the Installation Management Command. The post retains strong ties to the Military District of Washington for many operational matters.

BRAC Overview:

The 2005 Base Realignment and Closure legislation was signed into law on Nov. 9, 2005. Under BRAC law, Fort Belvoir will have a net gain of approximately 19,300 military and civilian employees - the largest net gain of any DoD installation.

BRAC 2005 will nearly double the size of Fort Belvoir's work force to a total population of 47,000 by September 15, 2011 - the federally mandated date by which BRAC must be completed.

The cost of construction for new facilities, renovated facilities, and infrastructure projects related to the implementation of BRAC at Fort Belvoir is forecasted to cost more than $4 billion.

With all of the BRAC projects now nearing completion, the future appearance of Fort Belvoir is beginning to take shape. The post will expand to include a total of three non-contiguous sites or substations in the region. Non-contiguous Fort Belvoir property includes Rivanna Station in Charlottesville, Va.; the Fort Belvoir North Area in Springfield, Va.; and a portion of the Mark Center in Alexandria, Va.; that are now home to three BRAC realigned organizations at Fort Belvoir. They are the Defense Intelligence Agency's Joint-Use Intelligence Analysis Facility, the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency's New Campus East, and the multiple Defense Department agencies formerly in leased space in the National Capital Region, respectively.

To support the increased workforce and mission requirements, the installation will invest $182 million into roads, utilities, communications and base support facilities while renovating existing space, building new buildings for incoming tenants, reconfiguring the installation, and implementing increased traffic demand management practices to mitigate traffic concerns. During 2010-2011, Gunston, Belvoir, and Pohick Roads will be expanded to four lanes to accommodate Belvoir's growth.

Incoming and Outgoing Organizations:

The 2005 BRAC legislation is broken into multiple recommendations or individual actions. The following realignments are associated with Fort Belvoir:

Transformation Overview:

In addition to BRAC, the makeup of Fort Belvoir partners and the support the garrison provides continues to transform as new missions come online. Major renovations are being completed on all access control points to upgrade the anti-terrorism and force protection capabilities, construction of a new Lieber Gate and additional child development centers, a new PX and Commissary, a new Shoppette, as well as continued work on the privatization of utilities and housing. New missions include the Warriors in Transition barracks complex with Warrior Family Assistance Center, U.S. Army Forces Cyber Command, and construction of the National Museum of the United States Army.

Few areas in the world can match the diversity of the Fort Belvoir area. The installation is minutes from Mount Vernon, Old Town Alexandria, the nation's capital, as well as so much more of America's heritage. Alexandria's Town Crier can usually be seen calling out special events and happenings in the historic port city of Alexandria.

Few areas in the world can match the diversity of the area surrounding the nation's capital, which is a short trip from Fort Belvoir. In metropolitan Washington, D.C., there are hundreds of historic sites and places to experience history and watch history in the making.

Residents and tourists from around the world over can visit the White House, the U.S. Congress and Capitol, the headquarters of 14 federal cabinet departments and other federal agencies and bureaus. Almost every nation in the world has an embassy or diplomatic representative here. The nation's capital also is one of the world's most beautiful cities. Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, a member of Gen. George Washington's Continental Army staff, laid out the District of Columbia in 1791, with broad avenues and traffic circles, allowing for monuments, memorials, pools and parks. There's a world-class zoo, shopping for every taste and budget, hotels, theaters and restaurants featuring some of the world's finest cuisine. Cultural activities from John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts to local jazz clubs and dinner theatres cater to every taste. Recreation at Atlantic Ocean beaches in Maryland, Virginia, Delaware and New Jersey are only a few hours away, as are the snow-covered slopes, campgrounds and lakes in the Blue Ridge Mountains of the Appalachian chain in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

MISSIONS AT BELVOIR

MISSIONS AT BELVOIR

Fort Belvoir's reach is worldwide because more than 30,000 military personnel, federal employees, contractors and volunteers work here every day to fulfill the missions of more than 130 defense organizations. As a strategic sustaining base for America's Army, the work done at Fort Belvoir is vital to the success of the goals and objectives of the nation's defense strategy.

A list of the organizations that call Fort Belvoir home reads like a "Who's Who" of the Department of Defense. No other Army installation in the world can compare to Fort Belvoir and its singular mission to provide both logistical and administrative support to such a diverse mix of tenant and satellite organizations.

Fort Belvoir is home to three Army major command headquarters and elements of 10 others; more than 25 different agencies of the Department of Army; elements of the Army Reserve and the Army National Guard; and numerous DoD agencies. Also located here are a Marine Corps detachment, a Navy unit, an Air Force aviation support unit and an agency from the Department of the Treasury. Among the organizations located here are:

equipment and provides guidance and expertise for base level and major command fuels issues. It is responsible for acquisition, installation and maintenance of hardware and software to field DoD automated source-data collection for petroleum distribution equipment and systems. For more details, visit <https://afpet.wpafb.af.mil/>.

It represents the Army with national and international aeronautical matters, serves as the Army's primary interface with the Federal Aviation Administration and provides Army representatives at each FAA regional headquarters.

ENGINEER RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT CENTER (ERDC), TOPOGRAPHIC ENGINEERING CENTER

The ERDC, Topographic Engineering Center provides the warfighter with a superior knowledge of the battlefield and supports the nation's civil and environmental initiatives through research, development and expertise in topographic and related sciences.

ARMY FORCE MANAGEMENT SCHOOL

The Army Force Management School (AFMS) was established as the Army's central educational institution for preparing senior analysts and leaders for assignment in the Force Management community worldwide. The school provides force management training to selected Army officers, noncommissioned officers and Department of Army civilians serving in or selected for force management or related assignments Army-wide. The school provides updated force management publications and consolidated force management support to the Army Staff, Army major commands, and Army Agencies, as required. The school seeks to provide a small corps of force management experts to the Army.

ARMY FORCE MANAGEMENT SUPPORT AGENCY

Part of a field operating agency of the Army's Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Plans, this agency is responsible for managing and modernizing force documentation (Modification Table of Equipment, Table of Distribution and Allowances, Mobilization Table of Distribution and Allowances) of all personnel and equipment requirements and authorizations for the Army. ADD, USAFMSA, builds and maintains the database for all MTOE and TDA documents for the Army. USAFMSA also provides analytical support to the Army's force integration and management community, from installation level through the major commands to the Department of the Army senior leadership.

ARMY INSPECTOR GENERAL SCHOOL

Conducts the Army Inspector General Course. Created in 1983, this three-week course is for commissioned officers, Department of Army civilians, warrant officers and NCOs assigned to Army inspector general offices worldwide. The course teaches concepts, techniques and issues relating to the IG system. It examines basic policies and procedures pertaining to the mission of IGs, including assistance, investigations, inspections and teaching and training. The course develops and reinforces the qualities, behavior, knowledge and skills required of IGs to enable them to be functioning, knowledgeable and contributing members of the IG system once they arrive at their assignments. Army IGs are required to attend this course before performing IG duties. There is also space available for sister services and DoD agencies.

AREA MAINTENANCE SUPPORT ACTIVITY 91 (GROUND/WATERCRAFT)

Our mission is simple, but vital for our Nation...We teach the thinking and linking skills that build a culture of continuous change and innovation critical to Army Transformation. We also offer consulting services and conduct research in support of the Army's sustaining base.

We offer six courses of study, including the Sustaining Base Leadership and Management resident and non-resident programs. SBLM teaches the business of the Army with development of key skills such as leadership, communication and problem solving. Personnel Management for Executives I and II focus on a leader's skill in dealing with the "people" issues of any organization. Our Command Programs prepare incoming installation and garrison commanders and their sergeants major for new command assignments. These courses focus on the issues of blending people with resources, facilities, environment, logistics, mobilization, training, personnel and security. The General Officer Installation Course and the Garrison Precommand Course are mandatory for incoming installation and garrison commanders. The Garrison Sergeants Major Course is highly encouraged for installation and garrison sergeants major.

ARMY MANPOWER ANALYSIS AGENCY

ARMY MATERIEL COMMAND: ESSENTIAL IN PEACE, INDISPENSABLE IN WAR.

AMC is the Army's premier provider of materiel readiness - technology, acquisition support, materiel development, logistics power projection, and sustainment - to the total force, across the spectrum of joint military operations. If a Soldier shoots it, drives it, flies it, wears it, or eats it, AMC provides it. The command's complex missions range from development of sophisticated weapon systems and cutting-edge research, to maintenance and distribution of spare parts. AMC operates the Research, Development and Engineering Centers, Army Research Laboratory, depots, arsenals, ammunition plants, and other facilities, and maintains the Army's prepositioned stocks, both on land and afloat. The command is also the DoD Executive Agent for nuclear, chemical and biological defense. To develop, buy and maintain materiel for the Army, AMC works closely with Program Executive Officers, the Army Acquisition Executive, industry and academia, the other services and other government agencies. The command's main effort is to achieve the development, support, and sustainment of the future Army while at the same time, supporting and sustaining the current Army. Its maintenance depots restore weapon systems needed as the Army makes its way to full transformation.

The command's overhaul and modernization efforts are enhancing and upgrading major weapon systems - not just making them like new, but inserting technology to make them better and more reliable.

AMC handles diverse missions that reach far beyond the Army.
